

LOG ON . . .

HELPFUL WEB SITES FOR YOUNG JOURNALISTS

- ◆ StudentPress.org offers helpful information for high-school and college journalists -- including annual conferences, awards and ideas for coverage. (www.studentpress.org)
 - ◆ American Society of Newspaper Editors offers one of the most comprehensive internship listings in the industry -- from local weeklies to major metropolitan dailies. This is a wonderful place to start if you're seeking professional experience. (www.asne.org)
 - ◆ Joe Grimm's JobsPage offers practical advice for seeking and getting that professional experience, including everything from how to put together your application packets to how to approach the first day of an internship. (www.freep.com/legacy/jobspage)
 - ◆ The Society of Professional Journalists is one of the top professional journalism organizations in the country and has resources for all types of journalists. For students, it's an easy way to connect and learn from those in the professional world. (www.spj.org)
 - ◆ The Freedom Forum is a leader in First Amendment promotion, manages the Newseum and encourages student journalists by teaching and molding up-and-comers in the industry. They also offer the Free Spirit Scholarship and Conference for high school seniors every year in Washington, D.C. (www.freedomforum.org)
-

*Presented by Kristen Daum, student, MSU School of Journalism.
A College Journalist's Take on Life. MIPA Journalism Day. Oct. 23, 2008.*